

INDUSTRIAL MARKET OVERVIEW

MATTHEW NORA, Vice President

The Denver industrial market remains steady with tenant demand remaining robust. New product continues to be delivered with almost 11M SF under construction as the development pipeline remains strong. Average asking rental rates continue to increase across all industrial product types, closing at $11.93 PSF on a triple net basis. Vacancy has decreased slightly from Q1 with an average vacancy rate of 6.10% and 4.6M SF of absorption in Q2 2023. It is important to note many large users' preference has shifted to a desire of owning their own real estate (Dollar General, Pepsi, Whole Foods). Sales prices are still well above the national average, with interest rates continuing to creep upwards causing a slowdown in investment activity.
