

OFFICE MARKET OVERVIEW

JR BITZER, Principal

As we head into the summer months, Metro Denver's office market continues along the same trajectory. Net absorption continues to trend in the wrong direction. Vacancy and sublease space are still on the rise. On the flip side, activity is up and rental rates have stabilized. There was some good news in that Denver's iconic Republic Plaza has secured two new leases that will stave off a pending foreclosure as the existing loan has now been modified. Average daily occupancy downtown now hovers around 60% during mid-week, which is a positive sign that more employees are heading back to the office.
