

INDUSTRIAL MARKET OVERVIEW

RON WEBERT, SIOR, Principal

Steady, that is the term we would use for the Denver Industrial market from a leasing and sales perspective in the 1st Qtr. Leasing numbers and absorption figures were consistent with previous quarters. The lack of large transactions is concerning, and the inventory of large available (75K+) units, is turning this into a Tenant's market. If Tenants are considering a move, they now find themselves with great options, and Landlords are now starting to offer incentives to land the deal. The recent threats of tariffs will most likely have a deep impact on the industrial market as companies will be paralyzed to make any major moves until we are in a more stable environment, so expect to see the same metrics and market indicators for the next few quarters, unless the administration changes course.
